

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT GOALS

In September 2015, at the United Nations, governments of the world committed themselves to a Transformative 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. After years of negotiation it was agreed that all nations would individually and collectively work to achieve seventeen Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) by 2030. Each goal has a series of measureable targets.

The SDGs include targets to end poverty and hunger, reduce inequality within nations and between nations, provide decent work and quality education for all, and to combat climate change. They are as politically challenging for countries like the USA, as for countries in Africa, Asia and Latin America. The massive process of consultation and negotiation to define the goals involved not only governments, but every sector of the human community. Nothing like this has ever happened before. Read the inspiring document setting out the global agenda at:

<https://sustainabledevelopment.un.org/post2015/transformingourworld>

These Goals concern all of us. They have the potential to become a focus for the forces of goodwill in all sectors of society and could be the vehicle to inspire waves of activity in every society and every country. The Goals can only be reached by 2030 if people everywhere are inspired to contribute towards their achievement: locally, nationally and world-wide. Everyone needs to know about the Goals. www.globalgoals.org

World Goodwill Supports the SDGs

People of goodwill are those who think and act with a measure of loving understanding and of concern for the well-being of all. The energy of goodwill is a powerful force for social change – yet its power remains largely unrecognized and underutilized. World Goodwill fosters understanding of this energy and the role it is playing in the development of a new humanity.

World Goodwill; World Goodwill at the UN

www.worldgoodwill.org

Offices in London, New York & Geneva.

worldgoodwill.uk@lucistrust.org

In September 2015, at the United Nations, governments of the world committed themselves to a Transformative 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. After years of negotiation it was agreed that all nations would individually and collectively work to achieve seventeen Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) by 2030. Each goal has a series of measureable targets.

The SDGs include targets to end poverty and hunger, reduce inequality within nations and between nations, provide decent work and quality education for all, and to combat climate change. They are as politically challenging for countries like the USA, as for countries in Africa, Asia and Latin America. The massive process of consultation and negotiation to define the goals involved not only governments, but every sector of the human community. Nothing like this has ever happened before. Read the inspiring document setting out the global agenda at:

<https://sustainabledevelopment.un.org/post2015/transformingourworld>

These Goals concern all of us. They have the potential to become a focus for the forces of goodwill in all sectors of society and could be the vehicle to inspire waves of activity in every society and every country. The Goals can only be reached by 2030 if people everywhere are inspired to contribute towards their achievement: locally, nationally and world-wide. Everyone needs to know about the Goals. www.globalgoals.org

World Goodwill Supports the SDGs

People of goodwill are those who think and act with a measure of loving understanding and of concern for the well-being of all. The energy of goodwill is a powerful force for social change – yet its power remains largely unrecognized and underutilized. World Goodwill fosters understanding of this energy and the role it is playing in the development of a new humanity.

World Goodwill; World Goodwill at the UN

www.worldgoodwill.org

Offices in London, New York & Geneva.

worldgoodwill.uk@lucistrust.org

In September 2015, at the United Nations, governments of the world committed themselves to a Transformative 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development. After years of negotiation it was agreed that all nations would individually and collectively work to achieve seventeen Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) by 2030. Each goal has a series of measureable targets.

The SDGs include targets to end poverty and hunger, reduce inequality within nations and between nations, provide decent work and quality education for all, and to combat climate change. They are as politically challenging for countries like the USA, as for countries in Africa, Asia and Latin America. The massive process of consultation and negotiation to define the goals involved not only governments, but every sector of the human community. Nothing like this has ever happened before. Read the inspiring document setting out the global agenda at:

<https://sustainabledevelopment.un.org/post2015/transformingourworld>

These Goals concern all of us. They have the potential to become a focus for the forces of goodwill in all sectors of society and could be the vehicle to inspire waves of activity in every society and every country. The Goals can only be reached by 2030 if people everywhere are inspired to contribute towards their achievement: locally, nationally and world-wide. Everyone needs to know about the Goals. www.globalgoals.org

World Goodwill Supports the SDGs

People of goodwill are those who think and act with a measure of loving understanding and of concern for the well-being of all. The energy of goodwill is a powerful force for social change – yet its power remains largely unrecognized and underutilized. World Goodwill fosters understanding of this energy and the role it is playing in the development of a new humanity.

World Goodwill; World Goodwill at the UN

www.worldgoodwill.org

Offices in London, New York & Geneva.

worldgoodwill.uk@lucistrust.org

